TELECONFERENCE AT UD OPEN TO PARENTS OF PRESCHOOLERS

DAYTON, Ohio -- "I'm Me and I'm Special," a teleconference for parents of preschoolers, will be held at the University of Dayton from 2 to 4 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 17, in O'Leary Auditorium located in UD's Miriam Hall. The teleconference, held in conjunction with the University of Notre Dame, is free, but reservations are required.

The teleconference will deal with fostering strong self-esteem, creating a positive attitude toward learning and disciplining a child in an atmosphere of respect. The discussion will include a look at the developmental stages of children ages 2 through 5.

The panelists for the teleconference include Terri Kosik, director of early childhood development at St. Mary's College, Ruth Warren, consultant in self-esteem building and Thomas Morris, associate professor of philosophy at the University of Notre Dame.

There will be an opportunity for small group discussion following the conference.

For reservations or more information, contact UD's Center for Religious Telecommunications at (513) 229-3160.
